

The C. P. R. As a LandlordLetuc Record:

Some time since we had occasion to call attention to the amount of C. P. R. land that was untaxable, and now that there is a movement on foot to incorporate the village into a town municipality, we again feel the burden, which we, with other communities throughout Canada, are carrying unjustly. Much may be said in favor of the C.P.R., which we are prepared to admit, but it was generally understood at the time the deal was made with the government that the land was to be tax-bearing twenty years hence. The company's representatives themselves, no doubt, interpreted it that way also, but later it was ascertained that the wording of the agreement was such that the company could take advantage of it by a quibble, and which they did not fail to do. The said company have much valuable land in Canada, and are making money fast, as shown by the value of their stock today; yet, they take advantage of the unfortunate wording of the agreement to evade the taxes which would be secured in making roads and which would be of general benefit to the country, and more particularly to the sparsely populated Northwest.

The C. P. R. village area is only a small one, still there are 53 C. P. R. lots on which the village cannot obtain taxes, and when the town is incorporated there will be a considerable amount more untaxable land included. The C. & E. pay taxes on 44 lots at present.

The general interpretation of the agreement was and is, that the company's lands should be taxable after February, 1901. Somewhere about two years since, if we remember correctly, Moose Jaw and some other towns along the line fought the C. P. R. for the taxes on their lands within their municipalities. The matter was referred to parliament, and the ruling was against the company.

That should in our opinion, serve as a precedent; and if the matter is gone into thoroughly, may be the means of not only Letuc, but other communities securing from the company the taxes that they in all justice should pay. If all the communities along the line between Calgary and Edmonton were to co-operate in this matter, no doubt the weight would have a telling effect. This branch line is one of the best paying pieces the company has, and we are only asking what we are justly entitled to, and what the said company can well afford to pay.

In asking for these taxes the community is not requesting a bonus, but merely demanding its just rights, and further, the company's lands would be proportionately enhanced in value by the expenditure of the money in road construction, etc.

This is a matter affecting the whole of the Northwest, and many people who feel it keenly are asking why the papers do not take it up. We solicit the co-operation of our contemporaries along the line, and would be pleased to have an expression of opinion on the matter from Edmonton, Strathcona and Calgary publications. Through the Bulletin, Mr. F. Oliver, M.P., could give the public some valuable information on the subject generally, and as to the stage the pending cases have reached more particularly.

Winnipeg MarketsFrom the Commercial:

Oats—This week's business has resulted in a decline of 2c to 3c per bushel. The situation is peculiar, resulting from the fact that stocks are in strong hands, and large amounts are being placed on contract for the supply of construction gangs. There is no falling demand owing to the lack of interest of oats in the east. Grain brokers state that our offerings from country points are large but that they cannot sell to local feed men, who are well stocked. Inspections continue light and what few transactions there are are at higher prices than might be expected. While brokers claim that a further decline is bound to come, farmers predict a rise, stating that the present decline is merely temporary, and due to elevator men clearing out their elevators. We quote: No. 2 white in carlots on truck worth 37c to 38c here, and feed grades, 35c to 36c. Farmers' loads, in the country, bring 38c to 39c.

Wheat—The local market has been very dull, showing strength when the American markets advanced, but also declining in sympathy with outside prices. As we are nearing July it will be well for those who are long on this option to remember that after the first of the month the wheat is likely to be delivered. This fact will prevent heavy buying of July and interest will be centered in September and October wheat. Yesterday's Winnipeg October closed 77 1/8, which seems to us rather high, and with the outlook so favorable this ought to prove a good piece to sell.

No Progress in Work of Session

Yesterday's sitting of Parliament was occupied chiefly in consideration of the estimates of the Department of Marine and Fisheries. A good many questions were asked and not much progress made. Since the discussion on the Budget little or nothing has been done towards disposing of the business before Parliament. The expected discussion on the Dundonald affair has not yet taken place although the papers are down.

Reason for Obstruction a False Alarm

It was thought that the obstruction of the estimates of the Minister of Agriculture was with a view of holding up all other business until the discussion on the Dundonald dismissal had taken place, but it now appears that there was another reason. The Government had announced in reply to an enquiry as to what new legislation might be expected this session, that there would be amendments to the Franchise Act. At once the Opposition jumped to the conclusion that it was the intention to deal with the Franchise Act as applied to Manitoba; and rather than permit this to be done the leaders of the Opposition declared that they would obstruct business all summer. Their fears, however, were set at rest yesterday by the Premier's statement as to what was going to be done with the Franchise Act. The amendments were of a minor nature and did not at all touch Manitoba. The Opposition recognized that it was a false alarm and their papers now say that they will permit the session to close by the 1st of August. Two or three months ago the date mentioned was the 15th of July, but with a party whose only policy is obstruction it is at all times difficult to fix a limit of time.

Conservatives and the Franchise Act

Just how the case stands in regard to the application of the Franchise Act in the province of Manitoba is worthy of a little explanation. Many years ago, under the Premiership of Sir John Macdonald, it was decided that the Dominion should have a franchise qualification irrespective of the provinces. A franchise act was passed providing a qualification for Dominion voters and for the preparation of the election voters lists. The object of the act was to place control of the Dominion voters lists as much as possible in the hands of the party then in power. The Franchise Act was a twin measure with the Gerrymander of Ontario with the simple purpose of enabling the Conservative party to maintain itself in power even against a popular majority.

Liberals and the Franchise Act

Naturally the Franchise Act as well as the Gerrymander was strongly opposed by the Liberals for party reasons, and also because of the tremendous expense of its working; which entailed an outlay of about a million dollars per year—that is, provided the lists were revised each year, as the spirit of the act required. When the Liberal Government came to power, in accordance with their policy as expressed while in opposition, they repealed the act providing for a Dominion franchise separate from that of the provinces and adopted the provincial franchise and voters lists. That was the franchise of the Dominion provided to say, instead of the Dominion providing a list of such voters, they simply took the qualifications and thereby lists of the various provinces, thereby giving up the advantage which the Franchise Act placed in the hands of the party in power, and also saving the immense cost of the annual revision of the lists. The last general Dominion elections were held on the provincial lists and under the provisions of the existing franchise act.

The Game as It is Played in Manitoba

So long as the provincial governments adopted a fair franchise and proper lists there was no fault to be found with the economy and principle of the new act; but in the province of Manitoba the local government has provided a new franchise which excludes a very considerable part of the adult male population and has made such provision for the compiling of the voters lists as has resulted in the lists being made very largely in favor of the Conservative party which holds power in provincial politics. To put the case shortly, the Conservative government of Manitoba has taken advantage of the position in which it has been placed by the adoption of the present Franchise Act to entrench the Conservative party in Manitoba, just as Sir John Macdonald took measures under his franchise act to entrench the Conservative party throughout the Dominion. It was the fear of an attack upon the party entrenchments thus made in Manitoba, by an amendment to the Dominion Franchise Act, that caused the Opposition party here to threaten obstruction of business until winter rather than permit these entrenchments to be destroyed.

The Conservative Idea of Fair Play

Had the Dominion Government undertaken to interfere with the provincial franchise it would have been, in the mouths of the Opposition, a partisan attack upon provincial rights, whereas the action of the provincial government is distinctly a partisan attack upon Dominion rights. If anything were needed to establish this point, the following clipping from the Ottawa Citizen, the newspaper of the Opposition at the Capital, will establish it:

"This statement from Sir Wilfrid does not harmonize with the information which he gave the house last Friday concerning the amendments to the election act. He stated distinctly on that occasion that if it was proposed to legislate in regard to provincial lists prepared otherwise than under the judicial or municipal authority, it was Manitoba therefore which Sir Wilfrid had clearly in view and it was unquestionably the Government's intention to legislate the provincial lists of Manitoba out of existence and have new lists prepared under the direction of Dominion government officials. The present Manitoba lists are very favorable to the Conservatives."

"Relying on Mr. Sifton's assurance that legislation would be passed at Ottawa remedying this state of affairs, the Liberal organizations in Manitoba practically neglected the lists. Mr. Sifton did his utmost to make good his promise and for a time he appeared to have won out. The question came up for final consideration at yesterday's session when the strong opposition of some of the ministers caused the rejection of the proposed legislation. Mr. Sifton is reported to be savage over the decision which means that if an election is held this year the Liberal party in Manitoba will be greatly handicapped. While this fact was anticipated by the cabinet it was held that the government could not force through such a bold measure of interference with its own franchise act without suffering loss of prestige throughout the country. Another consideration that entered into the cabinet's decision was the well known fact that the opposition would obstruct the business of the house for two months if necessary rather than allow the legislation to pass."

A Parallel Case

This case is exactly parallel to the Dundonald-Fisher incident. A militia organization was being effected under circumstances which would establish the organization as a Conservative militia club. This was as the militia forces had been organized previously in that district, and this was how it was hoped to have the organization continued. Of course there was no political question then. But when Mr. Fisher, as member of the Government, stepped in and broke the proposed combination, at once it was a case of politics in the militia. Just permit the Opposition to say and do whatever they please and it is not politics; but interfere in any degree either with their sayings or doings, and forthwith it becomes politics and an outrage upon propriety.

As to Politics in Public Questions

So long as our country is governed by its people, so long there must be division of opinion as to what is the best to be done for the good of the country. People holding like opinions naturally unite against those who hold contrary opinions; and so become a political party. It is the business of each to enforce their opinions as far as possible in the administration of public affairs. Under such circumstances every question of public administration is necessarily a political question or has a political side to it. It may be that in certain circumstances the political side is given too great prominence; but there still must be a political side. And it is passing strange that the political party, which during its years of power made the political side of every question whether great or small its most important side should, now that it is not in power, contribute itself the champion of the idea that there should be no political side to public questions.

The sincerity of the attitude taken may be fairly judged by an instance of the last few days. The newspaper organ of the Government in Ottawa appeared one day with a full column editorial on the Dundonald incident dealing in extravagant terms against the introduction of party politics into the administration of the military force of Canada; and on another page approvingly published an interview from one of the Ottawa M.P.'s, in which he expounded at considerable length, that although a personal and college friend and also admirer of Speaker Beldcourt of the Commons, he did not approve of and would not attend a complimentary banquet to be given that evening to Speaker Beldcourt by the citizens of Ottawa, because as a Conservative he could not consistently attend a complimentary banquet to a prominent Liberal; and did not approve of other Conservatives doing so. The Trapping of Makarov

"Imagine a dirty night in the English Channel—with dense fog, drizzling icy sleet, cold so intense that the thermometer registered 20 degrees Fahrenheit below zero, and the ships compasses temporarily rendered useless; such were the conditions under which these plucky Japanese did their deadly work, on the night of the 12th April," writes Sydney Smith in the Daily Mail.

"Seeing their way with colored lights, these black masses moved noiselessly in the silent night, engaged in the work of laying mines. The continual flashing of the searchlights from the forts of Port Arthur, earnestly doing sentinal duty, and keeping faithful guard over the entrance to the harbor, not only failed to expose the Japanese flotilla, but showed the Japanese their position."

"How innocently the Russian admiral with his fleet, was decoyed out of the harbor on the following morning—the 13th—by the third fighting detachment of the Japanese fleet, a few 23 knot cruisers. An easy prey, thought the admiral, and too tempting a bait to be ignored, for were there not Russian losses to be retrieved? It was an excellent decoy, capable of moving quickly, big enough to be tempting, yet not formidable by comparison. And when the Russians had been lured fifteen miles from their haven, the Japanese first fighting detachment, which had been skillfully concealed behind Miau Tien, emerged from the fog, at the psychological moment, ascertained by means of wireless telegraphy."

"Confusion took possession of the Russian fleet, and there was agitation signaling and a race back to protect the port, led, unfortunately for him, self, by the Russian admiral, on the great battleship Petropavlovsk. The Petropavlovsk, instead of being in the van, should have been in the rear, covering the retreat of the smaller craft. How keenly the Japanese must have been watching to see if the work of the night was going to bear fruit as they saw the Russians racing for the very spot where they knew the deadly mines were laid."

"Then, when at last a huge explosion did occur, hurling a column of water high in the air and concealing the Petropavlovsk in a dense vapor, the crew of the Japanese destroyer, which led the pursuing fleet, cheered as they had probably never cheered before. For it must have been the most impressive sight they had ever witnessed. When the vapor lifted they saw only the topmasts of the Petropavlovsk in the place where a few moments before a mighty ship of war had been racing at top speed for the harbor."

"The badly damaged condition of the Pobieda was seen as she limped along, listing to one side, and the Japanese witnessed the disorderly scene at the harbor entrance, when, in the mad scramble for safety, the Sevastopol and Pobieda collided."

"And what fearful kind of thing is this mine which destroyed the Petropavlovsk? It is a special mine known to the Japanese navy as the Oda mine, the invention of Commander Oda, its chief feature being that it has only to be dropped overboard. Once in the sea, it can be trusted absolutely to adjust itself in the desired position and remain there. Such facility is plainly of the highest importance where the laying of mines has to be done within the field of an enemy's searchlight, and within effective range of guns from which a shell would explode a whole cargo off projectiles, blowing into fragments the ship and all on board."

"Thanks to this facility the Koryu Maru and her torpedo and destroyer escorts were only occupied for twenty minutes on the night of the 12th in the actual laying of the field of mines, whereas, the laying of an ordinary mine, which has to be anchored with the point of percussion in the right place, involves considerable difficulty and great delay."

"Although the authorities are purposely vague regarding the Oda mine, another point claimed for it is that, whereas the ordinary mine can only be couched on to flood one watertight compartment of a battleship at the rate of some fifty tons of water per hour, the Oda mine operates over a much wider area, and with such destructive force that a vessel striking one is virtually doomed."

"Notwithstanding this, however, some Japanese experts are disposed to think that the singular rapidity of the Petropavlovsk's catastrophe is explained by the vessel having struck two or three mines. The mines have to be separated by an interval in feet approximately equal to the number of pounds of explosives with which they are charged, were they placed closer, the firing of one would probably explode the others. An interval of one hundred yards is required with mines requiring 300 lbs. of explosives. They are laid in transverse lines. As the blowing up of the Petropavlovsk appeared to the onlookers like an explosion, the probability is that one was steering diagonally across the lines and that the explosions were practically simultaneous. Certainly only the most terrible injuries could account for her immediate sinking."

More Trouble Coming

With the release of Messrs. Ferrer, Carls and Varley comes the beginning of the most serious crisis that Morocco has ever experienced, cables the Tanager correspondent of the New York World. The British and American ministers, on behalf of their respective governments, will demand the immediate capture and punishment of Raisuli, the brigand chief."

Both governments have all along rejected any suggestion that they guarantee immunity to him. Not only Raisuli, but the Morocco government has desired this, the latter forecasting that the Sultan would be placed in an awkward position if the brigand's punishment was demanded at his hands."

The situation differs extraordinarily from that which usually follows such an act of brigandage. Raisuli is now a prominent government official, holding what in the present lawless condition of Morocco, is absolute sovereignty over numerous provinces peopled by warlike hillmen. There is little doubt that the Sultan would, with easy conscience, break his promise and revoke any patents of governorship granted to Raisuli, and replace the robber with another governor; but should the hillmen decide that Raisuli has been badly treated, they will make the appointment of a new governor, and aided by the tremendous prestige he has given him, Raisuli, with the desperation of a doomed man, will hold the provinces with all the force he can command. Should the French government refuse the demand of America and Great Britain it will be an affront to those powers and the outcome is obvious."

The prisoners were released on Friday.

THE EDMONTON ROUTE

The latest assailant of the Edmonton route to the British Colony is one named Schwof who spent some time lecturing in this district last year. Through the medium of the Winnipeg Telegram he makes himself, his history, his intentions and his impressions on routes to the Britannia colony known in the following manner:

"Gustav Heinrich Schwof, a distinguished looking man who possesses a distinguished record in the city. He is recently from the northern part of the territory of Alberta and intends on July 18 to leave for the British Isles on an immigration mission. Between now and the date of his departure for the old land he will visit lands and settlements on the Canadian Northern Railway for the purpose of acquainting himself with the nature of the country and the condition of the people who dwell in it.

"A graceful height of 6 feet, four inches, an attractive countenance set off by a large military moustache, a few trophies of wild beast hunts attached to his chain, and a curio walking stick, give Mr. Schwof his distinguished appearance, while his experience as sergeant-major of the Bechuanaland Mounted Police in the first and previous engagements of the Matabele war, and other adventures in various wild countries, make up his interesting record.

"In recent years Mr. Schwof has made himself known to the Canadian public as a lecturer. He spent the past twelve months in the Northwest Territories, and has taken up home-stays there.

"The principal part of his mission across the Atlantic will have to do with the settlers in the Britannia Colony, Alberta. "But don't call it the Barr Colony," said he to a reporter for the Telegram. "The settlers have discarded that name on account of dislike for Mr. Barr."

Mr. Schwof comes to Winnipeg direct from Britannia, and brings with him a knowledge of the colony that took him six months to acquire.

"About 25 per cent. of the settlers who went to this colony," said he, "have given up the struggle in despair, but those who are left are a sterling lot of Britons, and the hardest of their struggles over, they are pleased with their condition, and are most optimistic in their ideas of the future. They say they have learned their lesson and paid dear for it, but there is not one of them who claims any disappointment with the country. The confidence under which they were induced to leave their Old Country homes, and the tactics by which Mr. Barr victimized them for his own profit are the causes of complaint. Had all the promises held out to them been kept or had they been told the truth of what they had to face, and given a fair chance to meet the conditions, they would now be one year further ahead in the work of building up their new homes.

"Six hundred homesteads are now occupied, many of them by large families, and from ten to sixty acres of each are under crop. What they want is stock, and while I am in England I will endeavor to interest some person of wealth in a scheme to furnish money for the purchase of stock to be furnished to the settlers on shares. "I consider the Britannia colonies the best case of settlers in the Northwest. They are not only industrious and determined, but such people elevate the social and moral standard of the country. They are settled on the best land in the Dominion. It is all rolling prairie, dotted with groves and well watered. Before many years the Britannia colony will be considered of great worth to Canada."

"Mr. Schwof drove into the Britannia colony via Saskatoon and Battleford, and considers this overland route the easiest and safest. The route via Edmonton, he claims, is beset with hardships and dangers."

Kuropatkin Visited Manitoba

Winnipeg Tribune:

Kuropatkin, the hope of Russia in the Far East, has been an unknown guest of Manitoba. The great Muscovite general, in modest privacy, visited the south of the province four years ago in connection with a trip through the United States, and he came and went without displaying himself, lest there might be any official demonstrations in his honor.

The purpose of Kuropatkin's visit was to instruct the Mennonite colonies in the south of the province. In his visit he stopped over at Altona, and was the guest of J. F. Swartz, the well known grain merchant. He also stopped at Gretna and spent part of the evening with Mr. Pinner, the grist mill owner at that town.

When the general arrived the roads to the Mennonite colony were very poor, in fact, it was impossible to drive over them, and it served only to show up a striking trait in the character of the Russian officer. He, with his attendant officer, simply decided to make the journey on foot, and together they walked four miles out to the country and back again. He wore no uniform, but had with him his cherished medals won on the battlefield and for distinguished generalship.

A. P. Campbell, of Campbell, McLean and Co., the local grain merchants, said today that Kuropatkin as seen by those with whom he came in contact while on his visit, was a very unassuming man, even to attractiveness. There was a strength of caste about the man that induced admiration from all whom he met. He conversed quietly and without boasting.

During the few conversations General Kuropatkin had while he was in the province, he expressed comment on the difference in the passport systems here and in the old country, especially Russia. He believed that the system of passports from one country to another is a necessity of every nation.

The great Russian chief impressed Manitobans as being of just such a character as to assume the powerful position that has been allotted to him in the war of the Japs and the Russians now waging.

 —The meeting of the town council slated for yesterday afternoon did not come off.
 —A gang of men have been engaged during the morning repairing a break in the water pipes in front of the post office.
 —The C.P.R. have completed a portion of the new line being laid by them through Assiniboia to avoid the curves on the present route and are running on the new section.
 —Last night's baseball match failed to materialize, the Strathcona team failing to put in an appearance. A considerable crowd had gathered at the grounds and their money was refunded.

—Yesterday's Imperial Limited was seven hours late in arriving at Calgary. The delay was caused by the discovery of an alleged case of smallpox on board. A freight wreck near Rat Portage also delayed the Limited.
 —While excavating yesterday for the foundation of the new Alberta College building on First street the workmen found several old graves made years since when the graveyard was in the rear of McDougall church. Some years since the bodies were disinterred and removed to the present cemetery but some were, apparently, missed. The coffins found yesterday were badly decayed and last night the gruesome portions of skeletons taken from them were lying in a box near the excavation where many went to view the unusual sight.

The constables selected for the work are: E. T. Patrick, J. McLean, J. K. Hayes, P. D. Walker, W. M. Miller, H. McCallum, P. Suter, E. Manchester, P. E. Bradley, P. Nutt, W. Allen, J. P. Duggan, C. W. Speers, A. McCauley, M. M. Johnston.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Coroner Crang yesterday held an inquest as to the cause of death of the Galician whose body was found in the C. & E. station yard yesterday. The verdict of the jury was: "We, the members of the jury sitting to investigate the death of Nicholas Mistlehew, beg leave to return a verdict of accidental death by falling from the upper story of a sleeping car. We are of the opinion that the mode of ingress and egress to these cars is dangerous and would recommend that it be made more safe."
 The verdict was signed by the jury men and the coroner.

SHIPPING OUT THE ALECKS

During the past week in anticipation of the coming fair and the opportunities offered by it all sorts and conditions of men, some of them not desirable parties to be in town, have been arriving daily. For several days the police have been quietly marking those who were apparently here on no good errand and the chief has been distributing the red ticket which means "Twenty-four hours to get out of town." A consignment of six were sent down the line last week with an invoice to the Calgary police that they might assist them in keeping on the move.

 On Thursday last notice was served on a party but when the time limit was reached he was found still in town. Accordingly he was arrested and appeared before Inspector Strickland yesterday when he was given the option of a fine of $15 and costs or six months in the guard room at the Fort with instructions to not return to the town.
 The authorities are determined to keep out undesirable and similar treatment awaits the next one who refuses to move.

AT THE OPERA

At the Rink Theatre last evening The Beggar Prince Opera Company drew another large house to witness their presentation of "Said Pasha."
 The cast of characters was:
 Said Pasha, a Turkish diplomat, G. Byron.
 Torano, a Mexican nobleman, F. W. Walters.
 Hassan Bey, an officer, Wm. Burgess.
 Hudad, an adventurer, sailor and liar, F. A. Wade.
 Nocky, his companion, "Why," S. Felch.
 Rajah of India, R. W. Burgess.
 Queen Ahti, Gertrude Hutchison.
 Salihah Sojah, Addie Mumford.
 Serens, Pasha's daughter, Irene Palmer.
 Toloidal and Isadad, guards of the Rajah, Robt. Burgess and Carl Leiber.
 Soldiers, sailors, ladies of the harem.

The play itself is probably hardly as funny as The Beggar Prince, but all there was in it—and there were many good laughs—was brought out last night.

Miss Hutchison had the part of Queen Ahti, and in the presentation she excelled, her solo singing to be desired. Miss Palmer as Serens, the Pasha's daughter, was again a favorite with the audience and received many bursts of well deserved applause. In the first act Miss Palmer and Mr. Burgess were called to respond to an encore of a very pretty duet.

In the second act a humorous solo by Mr. Wade, with a chorus by Misses Palmer and Hutchison and Messrs. Walters and Bronti brought down the house and the performers were called back three times.

Messrs. Wade and Felch were again the prime fun makers and never failed to start the loud laugh which evoked the most forceful of carols. In their two performances here these two have become great favorites with the audience and their appearance is always the earnest of good jokes and humorous situations.

Mr. G. Byron Bronti had the title role and he personated the pompous official of the Sultan to the life. The play for tonight is "Fra Diavolo." The curtain rises at nine o'clock each evening.

Northern Company Pay All Losses

Toronto News: The above company on Friday paid the last claim against them by the recent conflagration, handing their cheque for $40,000 to W. B. Bay Co., Ltd. The total amount paid by this well known British company, owned by the Toronto and Baltimore houses, amounts to over one million dollars all of which was paid promptly without any reduction on account of claim.
 Jas. McGee is the company's agent in Edmonton.

Musical Instruments

Have a peculiar charm for us. When we hear the sweetest strains of the mandolin and violin our hearts are thrilled with their joyful message and sorrow is for the time forgotten. "Music hath charms" certainly is as true as the gospel. Without instruments of some sort your home is lacking one pleasant feature. Why not purchase a mandolin now? We have a number of these instruments to offer at prices within your means. Call at our store and look over our musical instruments.
